Foreword

Fluent words and expressive adjectives inadequately transmit the true meaning of our high school days. The knowledge and training we have gained are overshadowed by the friendships we have made. We hope this yearbook will, through the years, bring back the friends and experiences that meant so much, for so long.

Dedication

To
MRS. GENE PRATT

For her many years of understanding counseling, her patience with our teen-age problems, and her friendship, the class of 1957 dedicates this issue of the Tohari as a small expression of their appreciation and gratitude.

Cause of Celebration

Northwest High Gains Accreditation

By ED FRIENDENBERG
Staff Reporter

Northwest High School has been accredited by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

The action was taken at an association meeting in Texas earlier this month.

Julian Gibson, the elated school principal and his equally elated staff, are now studying the final report of the visiting committee which recommended accreditation for them.

Northwest is the fifth county high school to be accredited. Griffith High School has been refused accreditation because its plant is inadequate. Southwest High School just began operation in September.

Accredited First Year

Northwest met accreditation requirements during the first year of operation.

Neither Mr. Gibson nor any other county school official know of another school which has qualified during its first year.

"People told us we were taking off a mighty big chew," Mr. Gibson said, and he added, "We did a lot of chewing. We had teachers' meeting after teachers' meeting. We were the meetingest school in the county."

"Our acceptance by the Southern Association," said Mr. Gibson, "is a credit to the staff. They worked together and worked hard."

According to Mr. Gibson, the benefits of accreditation are significant but intangible.

The chief benefit, he said, is that the school has been "evaluated in terms of its purpose, and we will be able to keep our eye on that purpose."

The staff itself in a series of meetings developed a two-page statement of purpose and then graded each section of the school program in the light of that statement.

Then last April a visiting committee from the Southern Association headed by Dr. W. A. Stumpf of the department of education at Duke University went through the school.

Recommendations

The visiting committee checked the school staff's evaluation and made recommendations.

It found that the staff had been "rather modest" in grading much of the school work.

The committee also made about 100 recommendations. They included such things as hiring of more janitorial help; organization of a guidance committee; require gym "uniforms"; more space for cafeteria and library.

Like all accredited schools, Northwest will be checked by visiting committees from the Southern Association every three to five years to see that it maintains its standards and progresses along the lines it has planned.

This is another of the big benefits that comes with accreditation, says Mr. Gibson.

CLASS HISTORY

Looking back over our two years at Northwest High School, we can recall more wonderful memories than are even imaginable. It all began back in the fall of 1955 when nearly one hundred juniors gathered together for the first time, from Old Richmond, Old Town, and Rural Hall. Our sponsors were Mr. McLean Mitchell, Mrs. Helen Pratt, Mrs. Vera Penner, and Mrs. Lucille Speas.

When the confusion of organization subsided, we elected these officers: president, Alex Council; vice president, Mattie Sapp; secretary, Ann Higgins; and teasurer, Roby Walls.

The main objective for the year was to plan the best Junior-Senior Banquet in the history of Forsyth County. And--we did! Our theme was "Gay Paris" and the gymnasium was decorated to look like an outdoor cafe. Our kind principal, Mr. Gibson, was undecided for awhile as to whether to paint the gym to match the awnings, which we painted red and white, or to attempt to remove the paint from the ceiling, walls, windows and floors.

To earn money to finance the banquet, three projects were undertaken. The one we enjoyed most was the play "Caught in the Web", which was given on April 12, 13, and 14 in 1956. With Mr. Mitchell's capable direction, we think it was a tremendous success. Carlene Thomas, assisting Mrs. Pratt in the make-up department, helped the cast look their parts.

The honor of being junior marshals went to the following: Mattie Sapp, Patricia Fulk, Ed Oberhofer, Janet Shields, Sidney Winslow and Sara Anderson, chief.

Our junior class was well-represented in clubs and other activities. Adrain Stanley, Joe Medlock, Ed Oberhofer, Mark Raby, Evelyn Burrow, Susie Snyder and Walter Brewer were some of our members who held offices in various clubs.

In the sports world Mike Barnes, Gene Clanton, Alex Council, Peggy Warren, Susie Snyder, Ed Hartman, Johnny Whitman, Doug Barr and others helped our teams win many victories.

Three majorettes, Alicia Conrad, chief; Betty Dunnavant, and Bettie Dancy; three cheerleaders, Ann Higgins, Patricia Fulk, and Verna Spainhour were also proudly claimed.

Our student council representatives were: Wanda Joyner, Shirley Marshall, Roby Walls, David Boger and Verna Spainhour, who served as vice president.

Near the end of our junior year, the long-awaited class rings arrived, and we began to realize that we would soon fill the role of dignified seniors.

When we reassembled in the fall of 1956, we elected as our officers: president, Mattie Sapp; vice president, Patricia Strader; secretary, Ann Higgins and treasurer, Mikal Barnes. This year our sponsors were: Mrs. Louise Newman, Mrs. Myrtle Byrne, and Mr. Culos Settle.

The football season was exciting with Sid Winslow, Mike Barnes, Adrain Stanley, Gene Clanton, and Paul Strupe leading our team to many wins. Leading the fans in cheers were: Ann Higgins, Chief cheerleader; Susie Ketner, Verna Spainhour, Patricia Fulk, and Bettie Dancy.

Roby Walls, Adrain Stanley, Billy Hall, Margaret McDonald, Janice Davis, Nancy Kapp, and Peggy Warren were among those who treated us to many exciting basketball games.

Early in our senior year we began to look forward to our trip to Washington, D.C. in the spring. It was one of the most thrilling experiences we were ever engaged in as a group, and I am certain we shall never forget it.

To earn money for our trip we planned our projects early in the year. The first, a talent show and baby contest, proved to be quite successful and was fun for all. Our second project, intramural sports, provided a different type of entertainment and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who participated.

The annual staff was selected and work began on the second edition of the TOHARI. Carolyn Nimitz, the editor, was assisted by Ann Higgins, literary editor; Paul Newman, treasurer; Sidney Winslow, sports editor; and Patricia Strader, business manager.

In preparation for the graduation exercises, the Vesper Speakers and Class Day officers were elected. Vesper Speakers are: Alicia Conrad, Don Doub, Jeannie Woosley and Susie Snyder. Class day officers are: Prophet, Ed Oberhofer; Historian, Patricia Strader; Testators, Mattie Sapp and Susie Snyder.

We were privileged to have initiated in our senior year a chapter of the National Honor Society. Kay Davies, Ann Higgins, Bobby Shouse, Ed Oberhofer, Sara Anderson, Jeannie Woosley, Sidney Winslow, Janet Shields and Ann Petree, were some of the seniors who were accepted by our chapter.

We are now at the end of our final year in Northwest High School. The time was short but the knowledge we have gained, the friendships we have made, and the fun we have had--all are precious memories which we shall cherish forever.

Class Prophecy

The time is the future:
The place is Somewhere, New Mexico.
The people are those of Northwest's class of '57.
The project is the first rocket ship to the moon.
The scenes of efficiency are as follows:

At the base of the moon rocket we see Donald Doub showing the dangers of space flight to the maintenance crew consisting of Ken Lawson and Clive Scott (boy genius.) We gather from their conversation that everything is going along smoothly.

The scene switches to the blockhouse where we see James Bolton, Chief promoter of this project, and world famous rocket enthusiast, asking the head of the project, Dr. Mikal L. Barnes, for the measurements of the crew members. An interesting sidelight is that Mr. Bolton is owner and Chairman of the Board of The Handy Dandy Do-It-Yourself-On-The-Lay-Away-Plan Funeral Parlors. In walks FBI agent Walter Brewer followed by his four secretaries: Bettie Dancy, Janet Sharpe, Katie Sprinkle, and Kay Lawson. He explains that this is just a routine check, but he says they should be on the lookout for foreign agents, Gene Byrd, Charlie Davis, and Travis Butner. Walter says he has to leave soon to get back to his office where his first platoon of secretaries can check out. Walter is managed by Gene Clanton, a firm believer in the two-platoon system. The second platoon, by the way, consists of Barbara Daniels, Faye Davis, and Gail Lineback.

Next we go to the administration building, which is fifteen miles from the rocket site. Here we find the famous trio of harmonic engineers, Sara Anderson, Shirley Marshall, and Gail Banner. Doing the paper work for them are Evelyn Burrow, Wanda Moxley, Phyllis Patterson, Shelvia Jean Boles, and Ruby Cox. In the next department we find the aeronautical engineers, Alton Hill, Gene Crews, Alex Council, Doug Barr, and Grady Cole. The head of this department is Colonel Paul R. Newman III, world famous for being the only person ever to survive four jet fighter crashes in one week. Down a door from this department we find the great test pilots who made this project possible. They are undergoing their routine mental, physical, and psychic examinations; their names: Herbert Jones, Charles Wolff, Albert Newsome, and the most famous of them all, Bobby Shouse.

Next we pass through a large room where we see many people doing the necessary secretarial work; among these are Martha Shields, Jean Grubbs, Virginia Wilkinson, Sandra Worrel, Katie Hilton, and Peggy Warren. The next door we come to is marked "High Altitude Research." Inside we find Roby Walls, Dallas Marler, Richard Ketner, and their boss, Billy Hall. On the second floor we enter a lounge where the crew of expert fuel loaders is engaged in a five card game of skill. Those participating are

Class Prophecy

Johnny Eldridge, Jimmy Westmoreland, and Johnny Whitman. Onlookers, eager to participate in this game of rectangular celluloids, are Ed "Game-of-Chance" Hartman, David "Now-or-Never" Boger, and Paul "Let's-Have-a-Little-Fun" Strupe.

We discover that this room is the PX. At a stand featuring necessities we see Wafs Janice Davis and Gaye Fuller vending poker essentials, Waf Wanda Joyner pushing Coke; Sue Ketner is in clothing. Hostesses Betty Dunnavant and Betsy Hall, assisted by Jo Ann Hartman, are showing the sights to business tycoons, Mr. Sidney Winslow, Esq., and Mr. Ade Stanley. Mr. Stanley got rich in the oil business, while Mr. Winslow was peddling hot rod Fords. In the corner we find Jimmy Whelan, Hugh Kearney, and David Lawson shooting craps. You may laugh, but these fellows make their living this way.

Into the room walk Peggy Nicholson and Louise Wall, who announce that the PX is to be closed until after blast off, which is only hours away. We go to the third floor where we find guarded rooms in which much secret information is hidden. On duty we find Charles Watson, Roy Allen, and Jimmy Bodenhamer. These men are armed to the teeth and no one may pass without a permit signed by the members of the security board consisting of Mark Raby, Ann Petree, and Shelby Phillips.

Many of the personnel hurry back to the rocket site on buses driven by Earlie Vogler and Joe Medlock. Both of these men are partners and own the bus line, but they are wise businessmen. They are always on the lookout for ways to save money, not having to hire additional bus drivers being one of these ways.

Many of the people close to those on the projects are gathered outside the danger zone. Among these are Nancy Kapp, Janet Shields, Nancy Cox, Kay Davies, Amy Jo Kiger, Shelby Marsh, Jean Morgan, Verna Lee Spainhour, Carlene Martin, Bonnie Spaugh, and Carol Ann Utt. The hour has come for blastoff. Ten-nine-eight-seven-six-five-four-three-two-one-fire!-----s i l e n c e----S i r e n s wail!! What has gone wrong? In the blockhouse there are unhappy faces; most dejected of all - James Bolton.

In a little brick fourteen room house about six miles from the administration building there is a gathering of culprits, Ann Higgins, Pat Strader, Margaret McDonald, Carolyn Nimitz, Mattie Sapp, and Susie Snyder are the darling wives who could not bear to see their loved ones go to the moon. Thy had lifted a part of the firing mechanism. How were they to know that it was an unmanned vehicle?

And by the way, how do I know all this is true? In the future there is an ingenious inventor who sends messages back to our times. Her name is Carol Sue Sparks, and she just couldn't keep all this knowledge to herself.

And who am I? Can't you tell? ---Why I'm the biggest liar that ever told a story, and I remain your faithful and obedient (not to mention clairvoyant) servant and prophet.

EDWARD OBERHOFER

Last Will and Testament

We, the 1957 Graduating Class of Northwest High School, possessing at least fair intelligence along with superhuman abilities, do hereby will and bequeath our most characteristic and prized possessions to such underclassmen and other person as we deem most able to profit by our bequests. Realizing that we are about to pass out of scholastic existence, we hereby declare this to be our last will and testament.

ARTICLE I

Item I: To our ever-understanding principal Mr. Julian Gibson, and to the patient members of our faculty, we leave our affection, and a deep sense of indebtedness. Although we have seemed a bit irritating and unappreciative at times, we hope you will accept our sincere apologies.

Item II: To what is now known as the junior class, we leave our good times and roller-coaster experiences in Washington, D.C. (We hope you won't mind the unpaid bills that go along with the trip.)

Item III: To the present sophomore class, we leave our delapidated themes and dog-earred book reports. Although they seem like total nonsense now, we are sure they will be considered prize possessions later.

Item IV: To the freshmen class, we leave our many tragic experiences with the hope that they will profit by our mistakes. Beware! Don't make the same ones we did!

ARTICLE II

Individual Bequests:

Sara Anderson leaves to Shirley Merritt her position at the scholastic head of the senior class.

Edward Oberhofer leaves to Rosie Kimball his title of "Official Scorekeeper." (If it's necessary to make errors, please make them to Northwest's advantage!)

To Karen Romaniw, Ann Higgins leaves many sore throats from cheerleading practices.

Kay Lawson leaves her winning smile to Ronda Kay Holland. (Take care of it, Ronda. It'll take you places!)

To Sally Weston, Gail Lineback leaves her neat and polished appearance.

Joe Medlock leaves his many talents to Alice Edwards. (Combine your talent with his, and we are sure you will achieve the superlative position he now holds).

Jeannie Woosley leaves her ability as an outstanding speaker to Jeannie Church.

Paul Newman leaves his supernatural appetite to Ann Leinbach..(Added to the one she already has, this combination should provide employment for at least two additional cafeteria workers.)

Charles Watson leaves!!!

To Ken Vaden, Billy Hall leaves all the inches he has above six feet six.

Alex Council leaves to his "little" brother Miller his position on the All-County Football Team.

Margaret McDonald leaves to her sister Jeanie her high scoring abilities (May she keep alive the McDonald name!)

Betty Dancy leaves her extra postage stamps to Daisy Mae Pyrtle.

Gene Clanton, Ed Hartman, and Herbert Jones leave to Phil Spainhour, Jackie Rutledge, and Wayne Kiger their rook cards for those days when you "just won't be able to make it" to school.

Verna Lee Spainhour, leaves to some faithful soul her position as bus driver--with it goes the responsibility of flat tires and bent fenders.

Betty Dunnavant leaves to Mrs. Wilkes her chewing gum. (She has asked for it so many times we thought maybe she might like to have it.)

The Last Will and Testament

To his sister Linda, Doug Barr leaves the task of getting her own way to school from now on. (Sorry Linda, he won't be going your way from now on.)

Peggy Warren leaves to Peggy Jo Smith her ability to outwit Mr. Settle and get "A" excuses.

Mikal Barnes leaves to next year's senior treasurer his treasurer report. (How he will untangle them we don't know.)

Jimmy Bolton leaves to Harold Cone his helpful ways which have gained him the respect of his classmates in years past.

David Lawson, Jimmy Bodenhamer, and Gene Crews, leave their "angelic" personalities to Dallas Blakeley, Grey Waller, and Roger Longbottom.

Nancy Kapp leaves her ability to keep a trailer, keep a husband, and keep up with schoolwork to Lib Kennedy.

Janice Davis leaves her mischievous ways to Janet Wall. (Uh oh!!)

Danny Clodfelter, leaves to Marcus Smith, his slightly worn cast. (Hang on to it. It's still good for a few A excuses.)

Nancy Cox, leaves her unquestioned talent for bookkeeping to Joe Tuttle.

To Ruby Gayle Cartner, Donald Doub leaves the honor of being a Vesper Speaker.

Gaye Fuller, Peggy Nicholson, and Katie Sprinkle, leave their long hair to Martha Crater and Brenda Hill.

Carlene Thomas and Evelyn Burrow leave their love for red and white Fords (and their drivers) to any other Ford-lover.

Sid Winslow leaves his superlative position as "Best All Around" to Bill Ray.

Sue Ketner leaves peace and quiet to the halls of Northwest. (Thank Goodness!!!!)

Janet Shields wills her outstanding intelligence to David Hartgrove.

Virginia Wilkinson leaves to Jim Olsen her sweet, Southern accent.

Bobby Shouse leaves to Sylvia Holt the privilege of taking part in presenting the morning devotional hymns.

To Jerry Stoltz, Ade Stanley leaves the slightly scarlet blush.

Carolyn Nimitz leaves her position as editor-in-chief of the annual to Melinda Smith.

Grady Cole leaves to Billy Cole his classic book reports. (Take care of them. Mrs. Newman will be calling for them next year.)

Roby Walls leaves the presidency of the Key Club to Don Yarbrough.

Betsy Hall leaves to Linda Arrington her place on the feature pages of next year's annual.

Patricia Strader leaves to Phyllis Leinbach her great interest in Allied Youth. (Follow in her footsteps, Phyllis, and you, too, will be the fine leader she has been.)

Wanda Joyner, Jean Morgan, and Carol Utt leave their sweet and likeable ways (which have won them scores of friends) to Linda Slate and Pat Simmons.

To Mary Lee Long Patricia Fulk leaves her place on the cheerleading squad. (Mary Lee's done such a fine job as an alternate, we think she really deserves this position!)

Richard Ketner leaves his little pick-up truck in the custody of David Hall.

We, Mattie Sapp and Susie Snyder, leave to some poor soul the "Brainwashing," but enjoyable task of writing the Last Will and Testament.

We, the 1957 Graduating Class affix our seal on this the day of May thirtieth, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred and fifty-seven.

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers was founded in 1897 for the purpose of working together for the betterment of our schools.

For the past two years our own P.T.A. has unselfishly dedicated its time toward raising money to supply us with much needed equipment. An electric mimeograph machine; a public address system, installed in the gymnasium; furniture for the teachers lounge; and a catalog system for the library, are only a few of the gifts they have presented to us.

We wish to express our thanks to all the members of the board and the association for their efforts in our behalf.

Scores 27 Points in One Game

Barnes Is a One-Man Team

By MARY GARBER
Staff Reporter

Griffith High's football team was eginning to wonder last Friday ow many players named Barnes ere on the Northwest club. It eemed as though every time they ooked up a Barnes was going for touchdown.

There's only one. His name is Mike—and he scored four touchowns, plus three extra points gainst the Panthers last week in Class AA conference football ame. His performance won him ffensive player-of-the-week honrs.

Mike is a senior at Northwest nd has played football since he vas an eighth grader. When he vas a six-man player, he "just illed in anywhere," but he has een a halfback in the 11-man ame.

Desire is probably the number ne reason for Mike's fine footall play. He's not big (155 ounds). He's speedy but he's not 10-second man. He runs hard ut he doesn't have the size for eal power. It's just that he's mart enough to take advantage f the openings he has and he vants to play so much that he's illing to work at his weaknesses.

"I don't do anything but run," ays Mike modestly. "The holes re there and I go through them, hat's all."

Anyone who follows football nows that it isn't that simple. The holes are there quite often, ut sometimes the back isn't quick nough to get through them.

Mike's weakness is defensive play. "I think it all started when I was a little guy and someone ran over me when I tried to tackle him," says Mike. "That sort of scared me and I haven't quite gotten over it. No, it doesn't scare me at all to run with the ball or get tackled."

MIKE BARNES . . . tops Northwest scoring.

Defensively, he is improving though. He has learned to hit harder and the Northwest coaches report that he has overcome most of his shyness.

Mike is a senior and plans to go to Duke next fall, but he won't play football. In the first place, he thinks he's too small for the college game. Then, he plans to be a psychiatrist and he figures that won't leave him much time for intercollegiate athletics.

He rates Mount Airy as the top defensive team Northwest has played. "They had a powerful offense and a good, clean hard-hitting defense," says Mike.

He's Player of Week

Council Recovers Three Fumbles

Don't drop a football around Miller Council of Northwest. The big Falcon tackle is likely to clobber you going after it. Last week against Mineral Springs, Miller recovered three fumbles as Northwest edged the Bulldogs, 12-6. His work won him defensive player-of-the-week honors.

Miller is 16 years old, a junior at Northwest and he weighs 215 pounds. He started playing football as a ninth grader and credits former Northwest Coach Von Ray Harris with his football career.

"I didn't care anything about football at first," says Miller, "but Coach Harris talked me into going out. Then, when I did I liked it."

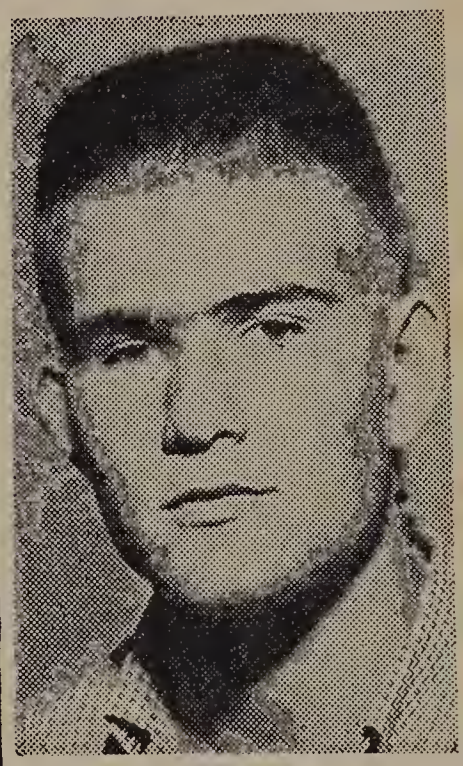
He liked it so much he got his older brother, Alex, to come out. Now Alex is a co-captain of the Northwest team.

Miller wants to go to college when he finishes high school and hopes to play college football.

"I think staying low is the hardest thing for a lineman to do," says Miller. He's a boy who wants to get up there and see what's going on.

Miller is an old hand at recovering fumbles. He picked up several last year. But he has never intercepted a pass and he'd sure like to, just once, so he could run with the ball. Like most linemen, Miller harbors a dream of running for a touchdown some day.

He thinks Jimmy Beck of Walkertown (who graduated last year) was the hardest runner he ever tried to bring down.

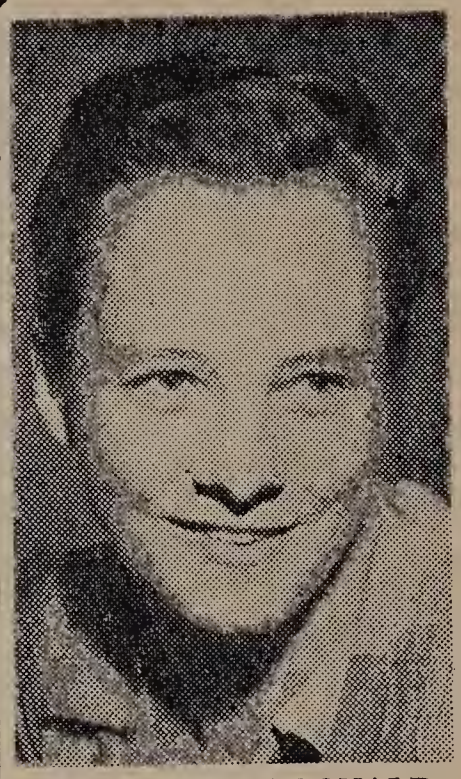


MILLER COUNCIL . . . recovers fumbles.

Wake Ball Player Stars for Falcons

If Dr. Thane McDonald, head of the music department at Wake Forest College, had picked somewhere else to live on the Deacon campus, he might not have had a basketball playing daughter.

But he lived right across the street from the Wake Forest gym and daughter, Margaret, spent every free minute over there shooting a basketball.



MARGARET McDONALD

Now, she's 17 years old, a senior at Northwest High and one of the top girl basketball players in Forsyth.

Margaret wasn't very happy last year when she realized that she would have to leave Wake Forest high school where she had been a basketball star for three years. She didn't like the prospect of moving to a new town and a new school her senior year. But now that she has made the switch she wonders why she ever worried.

"It has been wonderful," she said. She's captain of the Northwest High team and it's hard to believe that she hasn't been there four years.

The Northwest girls have won four games and Margaret has scored 169 points in the contests. She probably would have made more, but according to Coach Marjorie Nifong she passes off almost too much. "She's afraid the other players will think she's hogging the ball," said the Northwest coach.

Margaret gets her athletic ability from her mother who grew up on a ranch and always loved athletics. She has a musical ability from her dad and can play the clarinet, trombone and piano.

But Margaret doesn't want a career in either athletics or music. She wants to be a doctor and plans to enter Wake Forest next fall to begin her pre-med studies.

"If," she says modestly, "I can't make it, then I'll switch to physical education."

She likes an overhead jump shot the best and makes many of her points on rebounds.

"She's a little superstitious though," admits Coach Nifong. "She had the idea that our white uniforms were bad luck. So even though I'd planned to have the girls wear them the other night, Margaret talked them out of it and we wore black. But we're going to wear those white ones after Christmas."

He's Player-of-Week

Clanton Is Great As Pass-Receiver

By MARY GARBER
Staff Reporter

They say at Northwest High that end Gene Clanton would climb to the top of the water tower to catch a pass.

Gene thinks that's silly. Since the water tower is not on the Falcons' football field, there wouldn't be any point to catching a pass up there.

But where there's some future in catching the football (such as scoring a touchdown), Clanton is "ready, willing and able." He did some plain and fancy catching Saturday night as Northwest whipped Reidsville, 12-6, in a Class AA football game.

GENE CLANTON . . . Northwest end.

Gene's pass-catching and all-around end play won him offensive player-of-the-week honors.

Clanton is a senior and in four years of high school football has played two versions of the game at three schools. He started in 11-man football at Taylorsville High. As a sophomore he played six-man football at Lewisville. His junior and senior years have been in the 11-man game at Northwest.

He played end all four years but at Taylorsville was mostly a defensive performer.

In two years of Northwest High football, Clanton has won himself something of a reputation as a pass receiver. He has the ability to go up with several defenders and come down with the ball. He uses his height (six feet, two inches) well, but there's something more than that. He has the ability to judge the flight of the ball and to be in the right place at the right time.

But Gene figures that it's easier to outguess an opponent before that last leap into the air. "The most important thing about pass receiving is to try to fake the defensive halfback out of position," says Gene.

Next year, Clanton would like to go to college. He doesn't know what school he'll attend and he hasn't decided what career he'll follow.

Football is his favorite sport but he has played some basketball and quite a bit of baseball. He can pitch or play first base in baseball and had two years on the American Legion team.
